Welcome Back

Joanna G.

Welcome back Angels....With the summer almost gone, another year of Angel Hugs meetings is starting. We had beautiful weather this summer. I hope everyone had the chance to enjoy it. Now let's get back into the swing of things and make a difference in the life of a baby for family's that appreciate our help.

The busy Angels that we are I know we'll make this our best year ever. There are many people in our city that can benefit from our hard work and the dedication that we display so let's join together and put some smiles on their faces.

Every year all of our members work really hard to contribute to our group success, this ensures that we keep on giving all we can to those that are in need, a token to pay it forward. We make a difference to the people that receive our gifts, let's never lose sight of that, no matter how small the donation is, it makes a difference to someone in our community, so let's keep the hard work up, and make it happen all over again.

How are hurricanes named?

Forecasters began naming hurricanes in order to provide ease of communication between them and the general public in areas regarding forecasts, watches and warnings. By naming hurricanes, there is a reduction in confusion about what storm is being described.

- Prior to 1950, hurricanes were assigned names by the year in which they occurred plus a letter from the alphabet (i.e. 1942A, 1942 B, etc.). It then became the trend to give hurricanes human names. Experience shows that the use of girls' and boys' names in written and spoken communication is shorter, quicker, and causes fewer mistakes than any other hurricane identification used to date.

- Each season a potential list of names is prepared for the upcoming hurricane season. The list contains a name for each letter of the alphabet. (The letters Q, U, X, Y, Z are not included because there are not many names beginning with those letters.) These lists are recycled every six years and names are replaced when a hurricane name is retired.
